THE HAUNTED DELL.

John D. White of Clay:

If you saw this pleasant valley
I on woold wish to linger there,
Till you heard that a weird legen
Like a spell, broods le the air. A mysterious tradition
Is the bist'ry of this scene;
Only writ in vague impressions
With dire superstition's pent Here were no fond fovers severed;
No serce battles tidined the trees;
Yel, gries goldina gildenhoot here,
Wildly whisp'ring on the breeze?

Each dor hears the merry singing to the linest and the littleh;
At night, awis in favines quarrel,
And whippoorwills shrift in the br The creek, all dev, is softly chiming O'er its mossy longs and sheale; Its notes change to shrill I reblu Whon the midnight cherus delea.

BY LUTHER W. CLARK.

It seems a peaceful picture.
Oversrchel by the quiet sky—
llegged cliffs, a greeny moedow,
And a clear stream flewing by,

Shadows that sloop to anashine "Wake and march about or night!. The pale mose is the megician Whose wand calls such spectral rite! Strangely rude is the quaint dancing of the goldine when they vie With the wild, fantasiic fairles
Thet come from the silent skyl

The high bills stepe to the ocean, And, before begins the glee, There come bands of old musicians From the gray and gloomy seal

At first sunrise or 'ry morning !!
This droad host will all retreat;
Leaving not a fellen warrior—
Metn trace of their floot feeti;

Hul the brightness of this picture Seemeth to yet but a spell. And you what no more to linger In this lonely, listle dell. here.

Discouraging Young Ambition.

A citizen whose best weight never xeeds 120 points was the other day bay ng a comple of hens of a farmer on the market, and before the bargain was concluded, the two become quite friendly, and the farmer said he had caie. Mr. Perry arese, end spoke as fol-Mr. Speaker: I rise to a question of privilege tu a personal explunation in reference to allusions to myself made yesterday by the gentleman from Clay. I must say that I was hi-deed much surprised at the indirect stlack upon invelf and other gentle-men on this floor, suil the indirect attack made upon the Executive of the State, and on one of the Judges on the Appollate Benefit, by the gration man from Clay. Surprised that he would accuse myself, in common with olber members of this House with applying to him what he was pleased to denominate the gag-inw. when I voted for his measure of re-treachment mul referm, and also voted that he have the privilege of the yeted that he have the privilege of the floor to discuss lils prepeablon as long as ha desired. This conducts reminds me of the Scriptural admention to essent your pearls before swine, lest thay turn again, and rend you. I did not expect thin, when he fired his little blunderbiass, that he would point it in the direction of myself and the gentleman, from the seventh district of that elty of Louisville (Mr. McDernott). Mr. Speaker, his attacks on the Governor, and Jadge reminds me very much of the little fice running after and barking at the focometive englue; to see him at the locometive engine; to see him after he has exhausted himself in running and barking, curi his little tall and go back to his kennel in diagust. WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, Jan. 23, 1880. Despite the carnest desire of it.e Democrats to expedite the husiness of Congress and to have done with it Appropriation Committee have so perfected their plans as to be lu a posliion to put all the regular bills through in an inusually short time. A member of the committee said yesterday that so far as the approes, as well as of other stormy disens-sions, the end of which cannot be foreseen. In view of these manifestations, the general political situation and the well-known proclivities of time, and from ell accounts they are Congressmen, I do not think the de-

There is a growing feeling among the more theeghtfol and far-sighted Congressmen in favor of seme tegiselectoral vote. And it does not require a remarkable foresight to discover that some action he that direction would be most wise. All the signs of the times point to a contest unprecedented to bitterness and resulting perhaps in no cut of compleations. It is clear that the railical party will not give up control of the government upon a simple expression of the will of the people against them, if it can be held, by hook or lation on the subject of counting the unprecedented to bitterness and resulting perhaps In no end of complieations. It is clear that the railical party will not give un control of the government upon a simple expression of the will of the people against them, if it can be held by hook or crook or by the commission of any and of desperate political crimes.

True, a Democratic Congress counts
the gole this time, but will not the the vote this thue, but will not the Republicans claim, as they did before Electoral Commission was created in the last contest, but the President of the Senate has the sole right to count the vote, and thus precipitale a deadly struggle. Schnyler Co fax—there are people who remembers the country of the country ber who he is - had an article in a late number of the Philadelphia Times, the sole object of which seemed to be to point out the power of the President of the Senate in making the count. Vice President Wheeler would in that ease assume to coun' in the radical candidate.

A bill has been reported which is perhaps fair as anything that could be passed. It provides that the two houses shall mert in joint convention under the conditions as heretofore. and that all the cortificates or papers purporting to be certificates, shall be opened by the President of the Senate, and that he eases where there is a eon!reversy, both houses must con-cor ia determining the result. Under tha old twe my-second joint rule ndopted by the Republicans to ena ble them to threw ent the vote o' the recenstrue oil States, and repealed by them 1 the Senate in 1876. when they feared the Democrats might uselt to reject Louislana, the practice was that "no vote objected to shall be counted execut by the concurrent vete of the two houses." the present olli the vote of the State must be counted unless rejected by both houses, and the decision of a state court in the ease of a disputed election is to stand unless reversor by both houses. This accords sulstannally with the measure so long, ably and persistently advocated in the Senate by the late Senater Mor-
